

January 2012 Play in a Day

Are you brave enough to face the challenge of rehearsing and performing a Play in a Day? With dastardly pirates and buried gold galore we'll treat the audience to a thrilling version of Robert Louis Stevenson's 'Treasure Island'. There will be swordfights, sea journeys and maybe even a shanty song or two! So if you think a pirate's life is for you come and join us on our swashbuckling adventure!

Working as part of a team, we will start from scratch to create our very own production. This will be exciting, ambitious and fun as we get dressed up and learn to support each other in our very own performance! Faust's Play in a Day starts at 10.00am and after some initial warm-up activities we'll cast the play, do some character work and then begin to create our show!

Our aim will be to think on our feet, problem-solve and promote a team spirit to inspire us all to achieve our best. The goal is to produce a play in seven hours, which is ready to perform at 5.00pm – in front of an audience! Each participant may invite two guests to come and see what we've been up to and witness the results of our Play in a Day!

Erin McHugh - Play in a Day Group Leader

Erin grew up in the UK and moved to Hong Kong last year. She trained as an actor at Arts Educational School, London and studied Shakespeare at Central School of Speech and Drama. She has played a number of roles in theatre, film and television and has been teaching drama to children aged between 3-18 for over five years. Erin is full-time at Faust in the role of Programme Coordinator and leads a number of Faust groups.
